Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 13 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers easing Tuesday evening prior to a more settled period.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any remaining showers in the east of the region clear through the evening, leaving a dry and settled night under largely clear skies. Hill fog likely developing across the moors. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Wednesday:
Any rural fog in the morning will be quick to clear, giving a dry and bright day and feeling very warm in the sunshine. Maximum temperature 24 deg C (75 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Fairly cloudy on Thursday, with just the occasional drizzly patch for some and some sunny spells developing later. Dry and mostly sunny and very warm on Friday and Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.